

Abstract

The present invention relates to a method of generating a signal comprising the steps of:

- 5       - assigning a condition to a task, the condition having at least one criterion related to a geographical position,
- determining an actual geographical position,
- evaluating the condition by means of the actual geographical position,
- if the condition is fulfilled, outputting of the signal in order to inform a user of the fulfilment of the condition.

10